

Sarah Tauber

Dr. Sarah Tauber, assistant professor at the William Davidson Graduate School of Jewish Education of The Jewish Theological Seminary, graduated from Yale University with a bachelor's degree magna cum laude in History, University of California at Berkeley with a secondary school teaching certification in English, and JTS with an EdD in Jewish Education. She also studied Jewish history in Paris at the L'École des hautes études en sciences sociales. Dr. Tauber has taught in a variety of secondary school settings in the Jewish and general educational world, both in the United States and in Europe, and was the education director of Congregation Beit GIL in Geneva, Switzerland. Most recently she has taught Judaic Studies, History, and Tefillah at the Upper School of the Solomon Schechter School of Westchester. Dr. Tauber is also the book review editor of the Journal of Jewish Education.

Dr. Tauber's dissertation explored the role of the congregational rabbi as a teacher of adults, and she looks forward to integrating this research with her practical experience in the field of Jewish education. She is excited at the chance to guide and mentor JTS students on their paths toward becoming inspired and knowledgeable educators in the Jewish world.

Dr. Tauber's writings include:

"Between Reason and Emotion: Intellectual and Existential Tensions in Contemporary Rabbinic Education: A Portrait of Neil Gillman." Journal of Jewish Education, 73 (3), 2007, 227-259.
